

Relationships Education, Relationships and Sex Education (RSE) and Health Education Policy

September 2025

Achieve in faith with Love as a Community

Rationale and Fthos

'I HAVE COME THAT YOU MIGHT HAVE LIFE AND HAVE IT TO THE FULL' (Jn.10.10)

We are involved in relationships and sex education precisely because of our Christian beliefs about God and about the human person. The belief in the unique dignity of the human person made in the image and likeness of God underpins the approach to all education in a Catholic school. Our approach to RSE therefore is rooted in the Catholic Church's teaching of the human person and presented in a positive framework of Christian ideals. At the heart of the Christian life is the Trinity; Father, Son and Spirit in communion, united in loving relationship and embracing all people and all creation. As a consequence of the Christian belief that we are made in the image and likeness of God, gender and sexuality are seen as God's gift, reflect God's beauty, and share in the divine creativity. RSE, therefore, will be placed firmly within the context of relationship as it is there that sexuality grows and develops. Following the guidance of the Bishops of England and Wales and as advocated by the DFE (and the Welsh Assembly Government) RSE will be firmly embedded in the PSHE framework as it is concerned with nurturing human wholeness and integral to the physical, spiritual, emotional, moral, social and intellectual development of pupils. It is centred on Christ's vision of being human as good news and will be positive and prudent, showing the potential for development, while enabling the dangers and risks involved to be understood and appreciated.

All RSE will be in accordance with the Church's moral teaching. It will emphasise the central importance of marriage and the family whilst acknowledging that all pupils have a fundamental right to have their life respected whatever household they come from. It will also prepare pupils for life in modern Britain.

In this policy the Governors and teachers, in partnership with pupils and their parents, set out their intentions about relationships and sex education (RSE). We set out our rationale for, and approach to relationships and sex education in the school. This policy covers our school's approach to developing the whole child by putting spiritual, moral, social, and cultural development are at the heart of learning. It was produced by the Assistant Headteachers (Personal Development) through consultation with parents and Governors. We define relationships and sex education as 'the emotional, social and physical aspects of growing up, relationships, sex, human sexuality and sexual health'. We acknowledge that the role of parents in the development of their children's understanding about relationships is vital. Parents are the first teachers of their children. They have the most significant influence in enabling their children to grow and mature and to form healthy relationships. In fulling our statutory duty to provide a full programme of health, relationships, and sex education, we recognise our roles in preparing students to make informed choices. We believe that this means we must provide our students with the most up-to-date education available.

Values and Virtues

Our programme enshrines Catholic values relating to the importance of stable relationships, marriage, and family life. It also promotes those virtues which are essential in responding to the God's call to love others with a proper respect for their dignity and the dignity of the human body.

Statutory Guidance

From September 2020 Relationship Education is compulsory for all pupils receiving primary education and Relationships and Sex Education (RSE) is compulsory for all pupils receiving secondary education. Health Education is compulsory in all schools; both primary and secondary. (There is also a separate requirement for maintained secondary schools to teach about HIV, AIDS and sexually transmitted infections. This does not apply to academies). The parental right to withdraw pupils from RSE remains in primary and secondary education, for aspects of sex education which are not part of the science curriculum. There is no right to withdraw from Relationships Education or Health Education from 2020

Sex and Relationships Education:

From September 2025 the Department for Education has made changes to the curriculum for Sex and Relationships education. These changes are compulsory across all secondary schools. Under the statutory guidance topics that should have been covered by the end of secondary school included:

• Families

(New) Include same-sex parents/carers when discussing families.

• Respectful relationships including, friendships, including new content:

- (New) The links between sexism and misogyny and violence against women and girls.
- (New) Gender reassignment.
- (New) Teach pupils the "facts and the law" about biological sex and gender reassignment, including that legal rights may differ based on biological sex.
- (New) The role of consent, and awareness of power dynamics.

• Online safety and awareness, including new content:

- (New) That the internet contains inappropriate and upsetting content, some of which is illegal, including unacceptable content that encourages misogyny, violence or use of weapons.
  - (New) Pornography and how it influences attitudes and behaviours.
  - (New) How pornography can negatively influence sexual attitudes and behaviours.
  - (New) How sub-cultures such as 'incels' might influence our understanding of sexual ethics.
  - (New) The prevalence of Al-generated sexual imagery and 'deepfakes'.

• Being safe

- Intimate and sexual relationships, including sexual health
- (New) Equal opportunity to explore the features of stable and healthy same-sex relationships.
- (New) How to identify and learn from positive male role models.
- (New) Ethical behaviour in relationships, beyond respecting boundaries and consent.

As part of the statutory guidance it states that it is also important that pupils are aware of the law surrounding sex and relationships as well as broader safeguarding issues. This extends to consent, violence and abuse, online behaviours including image and information sharing, pornography, sexuality, extremism/radicalisation, hate crime, criminal exploitation (for example, through gang involvement or 'county lines' drug operations), hate crime and female genital mutilation (FGM).

Safe and effective practice including safeguarding

We will ensure a safe learning environment for all pupils by ensuring teachers adhere to the guidelines set out in our behaviour policy. Pupils will be given the opportunity to ask questions about the various topics covered in class and any queries will be answered in line with the aims set out in this policy. Sensitive issues will be handled with the upmost care and in line with the ethos of the school.

Teachers are aware that effective sex and relationship education which brings an understanding of what is and what is not appropriate in a relationships, can lead to a disclosure of a child protection issue. All staff are fully aware of the schools procedure for dealing with a disclosure as outlined in the safeguarding policy and will refer any such issues to the designated safeguarding lead.

Any visitors/external agencies which support the delivery of sex and relationship education will also be subject to the schools safeguarding guidelines and will be subjected to all reasonable vetting procedures and Disclosure Barring Service checks.

The right to withdraw pupils from Sex Education

Under the new guidelines for September 2020 the Department of Education has put in place new guidance on the right to withdraw from sex education. Parents have the right to withdraw their children from of any of the sex education aspects of the PSHE programme. Any request to withdraw from sex education must be put in writing and addressed to the head teacher for consideration.

Pupils cannot be withdrawn from any of the relationship or health aspects of education as this is seen as an important part of the curriculum and all pupils should be given access to topics surrounding staying safe and healthy relationships etc. The science curriculum contains topics on human development including reproduction which there is no right to withdraw from.

Pupils will also have the right to opt back in to sex education without their parents' consent from three school terms before their sixteenth birthday if they would like to. The school has an obligation to provide sex education for any pupils this may affect. This change has been reflected in the planning of the school's PSHE curriculum. For more information on the finer details of curriculum content please refer to the school website where the curriculum for PSHE is published under the curriculum tab.

Secondary curriculum overview

Before the delivery of RSE (which always takes place in Autumn 2), school write to parents sharing the TenTen curriculum that we use for delivery of RSE. Parents have access to the full curriculum, including the lesson titles and learning objectives. From the sharing of these curricula, parents can make informed decisions as to whether they wish to withdraw their children from all or part of RSE. Parents cannot withdraw pupils from any of the relationship or health aspects of education
